TEMPLE MADE

But they couldn’t be who they are if you didn’t do what you do. Every dollar raised, every commitment made, helps pave the way.

Thank you for making our students’ dreams a reality. We give our Owls the tools and training they need to be successful. You give them the opportunity to be what they’re meant to be.

Temple Made. It travels from our campus to Greater Philadelphia and cities around the world. And it all starts with your leadership.

Thank you for your support.
Our donors made a statement in the last fiscal year. Major gifts were made. Critical dollars were committed. And our students got the support they need to be Temple Made.

As you’ll see in the pages that follow, this support has a real impact. New buildings are going up. Technologies are being developed. The university is on its way to a historic scholarship fundraising goal, and is a national leader in its commitment to keeping educational opportunity affordable for bright and motivated students.

With your continued support, we’ll keep giving our students the education they need to be Temple Made.

OPPORTUNITIES MADE

Determination. Hard work. A drive to make the most of every opportunity. For generations, that’s what Temple students have been known for.

But opportunities aren’t always easy to come by these days. That’s especially true of affordable access to higher education.

So Temple is committed to raising $100 million for scholarships in five years — the largest scholarship fundraising drive in Temple history, which will more than double the amount of financial aid available to our students.

With your support, we can ensure that future generations have the chance to prove themselves—the chance to be Temple Made.
PRESSURES MOUNT

THE CHALLENGE

In 1973, state funding provided more than 60% of Temple’s budget. But today, after years of reduction in state aid, that number is down to 12.6%. With similar trends across the country, students everywhere have faced an explosion in tuition costs, and student debt has become a crippling national problem. As a result, the average Temple student now graduates with $32,766 in loan debt.

COMMITTED TO AFFORDABILITY

Temple is not sitting idly by as costs for our students climb. The university has:

• Frozen base undergraduate tuition and mandatory fees for the 2012–2013 school year
• Held base tuition stable for students in most graduate programs
• Cut its operating budget by $113 million since 2010
• Increased financial aid by 10.7% to $89.5 million
• Pledged to raise $100 million for scholarships in the next five years

STEPPING UP

WHAT WOULD $100M IN SCHOLARSHIPS MEAN?

$100 MILLION COULD PROVIDE:

2,000 ENDOwed SCHOLARSHIPS
40,000 TERM SCHOLARSHIPS
7,700 UNDERGRADuates WITH FULL TUITION

THIS IS THE EQUIVALENT OF:

3,280 NEW CARS
12 MILLION MOVIE TICKETS
25.6 MILLION GALLONS OF GAS
72.5 MILLION CUPS OF COFFEE
Vibrant. Vital. 24/7. New and improved buildings are transforming Main Campus and showcasing what it means to be Temple Made.

Thanks to critical support from donors, the Temple 20/20 campus development plan and other new projects are creating stunning results. A cutting-edge research center for cutting-edge technology. Expanded facilities for our athletes. And a residence hall that will be the new center of gravity for student life.

This is more than just construction. This is an evolutionary step forward for Main Campus and the student experience at Temple. These spaces will allow our students to become who they’re driven to be.

Where you are makes who you are. On our remade campus, our students are Temple Made.

Faculty and students at Temple University address real-world problems head-on. They identify innovative approaches to longstanding challenges such as cancer treatment; they patent new technologies such as high-efficiency nanotubes; they establish new businesses; they collaborate with their communities as well as with corporations to bring their ideas to market, and to people who need them.

Temple’s research enterprise focuses on use-inspired, fundamental and interdisciplinary research activities that address significant issues affecting society today. Whether it’s sponsoring a project, building a lab, endowing a professorship, or supporting an exploratory project that holds strong potential, the partnership of individuals, corporations, foundations and sponsoring agencies empowers the ground-breaking, life-saving work taking place at Temple University.

A SAMPLE OF TECHNOLOGIES BEING DEVELOPED BY TEMPLE RESEARCHERS

• Ultrasound waves passing through industrial wastewater to break up pollutant molecules and turn it into clean water

• Mobile apps that transform vacant city lots into urban gardens, or allow health systems to remotely monitor an at-risk patient’s heart condition 24/7

• Hand-held lasers that can detect bombs in cargo containers or IEDs on the side of a remote road

• A new kind of nanotube, integral to flat-panel displays, filtration systems and solar cells, that is cleaner, can be produced six times faster and is 530 times less expensive

• An oral drug that delivers a novel molecule that can “turn off” cancer cells in a leukemia patient’s blood

TEMPLE’S FINANCIAL PROMISE

Temple University is committed to fiscally sound operating practices while keeping pace with the needs of its students. An internationally recognized 501 (c)(3) tax-exempt, nonprofit educational organization, Temple University—which includes Temple University Health System and Temple University Japan Campus—pledges responsible growth through facility renovations, faculty additions and the continued provision of financial aid to deserving students. Much of this progress is made possible through the generous contributions of alumni, friends, corporations, foundations, faculty, staff, students and parents.
